

Help and Support with Personal Safety when Lone Working

If you or your organisation would like some 1 to 1 support about Personal Safety and Lone Working, then help is on hand...You can contact Liz Moore at Community First East Hampshire who will help you to identify any particular issues you might have about personal safety and help you to review your lone working policies and procedures. This is a great chance for staff and volunteers from voluntary and community groups to tap into this cost effective way of dealing with general concerns.

On a serious note, there is a legal responsibility for employers to address the issue of workplace violence—this is outlined in The Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 and The Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations 1999.

If you would like to know more about this service, then meetings can be arranged by appointment or perhaps you would like Liz to deliver a short talk to a group of your staff and volunteers about assessing risk, lone working, home visits, personal alarms and using common sense techniques. These issues can be addressed by contacting:
